14D Word Study

The Greek word for “ten” is deka; it was borrowed by the Romans and became deca. Much later, the word was borrowed once again, this time by English-speaking people. It is found in several English words, among them decade, a period of ten years.

The names of several other Latin numbers have found their way into English words. Here are four of them:

mon or mono (one)

bi (two) tri (three) quad (four)

Use the Latin form of the numbers one, two, three, or four to complete each of the words below. If done correctly, each word will match the definition.

	1. _____angle	a figure with three straight sides
	2. _____ruped	an animal with four legs
access	3. _____archy	rule by one person, a king or a queen
associate	4. _____tonous	sounding just one note without varying

14E Passage

Read the passage below; then complete the exercise that follows.

The Wizard of Menlo Park

Like other cities and towns in the late 1800s, New York City was a gloomy place at night. Streets were lit by flickering gas lights, if at all, and oil lamps or candles were all that people had to illuminate their homes. Thomas Edison had a better idea. In 1881, he built the world's first electric power station in Manhattan, helping to change New York into the brilliantly lit city we know today.

Edison was born in Ohio in 1847. When he was a small child, his family moved to Port Huron, Michigan. An attack of scarlet fever left him in delicate health. This worried his parents enough that they did not allow him to join in the boisterous games played at his school. The other children were not very tolerant of someone who stood apart from the rest, and young Edison had to suffer their taunts. His mother, who was a teacher, decided to take him out of school. She taught him at home, where he learned quickly. He asked many questions and liked to experiment on his own to find answers.

At that time, much of Michigan was wilderness, but the railroad was transforming America by making even the most remote places accessible to the rest of the country. When the railroad came to Port Huron, it provided Edison with his first job. At the age of twelve, he was given permission to sell newspapers and candy on the train that ran between his hometown and Detroit. He even printed his own newspaper, which he sold for three cents a copy.

At sixteen, he started working full-time on the railroad. For the next four years, he was employed as a telegraph operator in different towns. However, there were large portions of the day when he had nothing to do, and Thomas Edison hated to be idle. In addition, he required only five or six hours of sleep a night. So it was during this time that he began working on inventions along with his experiments.

At twenty-one, he invented an electrical vote counter, for which he was given a patent. This meant that the government identified him as the person who thought up the idea and protected it so that it could not be made or sold by others without his permission. When he was thirty, Edison established a research center at Menlo Park, New Jersey, where he and his associates ran what was really an inventions factory.

Over the next five decades, Edison was granted over a thousand patents by the United States government. Perhaps his most famous invention was the electric light bulb, but others included the record player (which he called a phonograph) and the movie camera. These things seemed like magic to people, so it isn't surprising that he became known as the "Wizard of Menlo Park." The once sickly child outlived most of his schoolmates—when he died in 1931, he was eighty-four years old.

Answer each of the following questions in the form of a sentence. If a question does not contain a vocabulary word from this lesson's word list, use one in your answer. Use each word only once. Questions and answers will then contain all fifteen words (or forms of the words).

1. How does the passage make clear that there were few towns in Michigan during Edison's youth?

2. In what way was the railroad important in Edison's early life?

3. With what invention do most people associate Edison?

4. What is the meaning of illuminate as it is used in the passage?

5. Why might Edison have been reluctant to go to school?

6. What boisterous activities might Edison's schoolmates have engaged in?

7. What details in the passage show that Edison's mother would not tolerate the behavior of Edison's classmates?

8. What is the meaning of delicate as it is used in the passage?

9. Why did Edison have access to the train from Port Huron to Detroit?

10. As a young man, how did Edison employ a lot of his free time?

11. What is the meaning of idle as it is used in the passage?

12. How did Edison change New York City?

13. How would you describe Edison's mind?

14. What must one do to protect a new invention from being copied by others?

15. How long did Edison live?

FUN & FASCINATING FACTS

Several nouns are formed from the verb employ. An employee is a person who works for someone else and is paid for this. An employer is a person who gives work to others and pays them. Employment is the state or condition of having work or the work itself.

Idle and idol are homophones. An idol is something, such as a carved figure, that is worshiped as a god. It can also be a person, such as a movie star or sports figure, who is greatly admired.

Illuminate comes from lumen the Latin word for "light." Other English words formed from this root include luminous, glowing with light, and luminosity, the amount of light given off, usually from within a thing itself, for example, a star. (The star with the greatest luminosity, apart from our own sun, is Sirius, also known as the Dog Star.)
